

WINTER 2009

Open Book

with LYNN ROSEN

Open Book is a series of book discussion groups led by publishing consultant and book industry professional Lynn Rosen. Lynn has twenty-five years of experience as an author, editor and literary agent, and teaches A Sneak Peek at Next Year's Bestsellers at Temple University and How to Write a Book Proposal at Drexel University.

In Open Book classes, Lynn provides an inside look at the publishing process and the craft of writing while leading provocative discussions about great books new and old. Open Book will bring you into a community of passionate readers, where you will discover new books, new ideas, and be introduced to other readers, all while enjoying a night out!

new classes
launching

WINTER
2009

- LYNN'S LIST: Great Books You Might Have Missed

In this five-session class, we will read some of my favorite works of literary fiction written by American women in the last 10-15 years. Books include: Bastard Out of Carolina by Dorothy Allison, Exposure by Kathryn Harrison, In a Country of Mothers by A.M. Homes, The Archivist by Martha Cooley, and Wonder When You'll Miss Me by Amanda Davis.

Class meets every three weeks on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9pm on January 7, January 28, February 18, March 11, and April 1. Students may purchase books at a discount through Lynn Rosen..

FEE:

The session is 5 classes, discussing a new book at each meeting. Cost per 5 session class is $110.

LOCATION:

Elkins Park, PA

- A SNEAK PEEK AT NEXT YEAR'S BESTSELLERS

Lynn Rosen teaches this early look at forthcoming fiction at Temple University's Institute for Continuing Studies.

Class begins in March. For more information and to register see: www.tufo.temple.edu

Open Book

great discussions of important books for passionate readers.

Note: Call for information about special sessions or private book club meetings.

TO SIGN UP, CONTACT:

Lynn Rosen, (215) 782-8076 lynn@lynnrosen.com

For more information visit: www.lynnrosen.com